these digital pages, we're excited to dive into the

We have a mated pair of Great Horned Owls that have chosen to nest in the flower planter on the second story landing of the southern exterior stairway at 824 Alumni Drive. An employee accidentally startled them last Monday morning while exiting the building. The nest is marginal so the worry was that they might not return.

It's a common sight at the University of Alaska Fairbanks: a student sitting at a desk, looking at a computer screen. The student is likely a member of the Alaska Association of University Educators (AAUE), a professional organization that provides support and resources for faculty and staff. The AAUE is a non-profit organization that has been around since 1968. It is a member of the National Association of University Educators (NAUE) and the National Association of University Professors (NAUP). The AAUE provides a variety of services, including professional development, advocacy, and support for its members. The AAUE is a proud member of the University of Alaska Fairbanks community and is committed to providing the highest quality of service to its members.
