Minimum Requirements for Degree: 120 credits

The English department offers core courses in writing and literature, and upper-division courses in literature, linguistics, creative writing, technical writing and literary criticism. The department also offers a two-year M.A. degree in literature and a three-year M.F.A. degree in creative writing. Teaching assistantships are available for both programs. The M.A. degree offers advanced study of literature and literary theory as preparation for teaching or for entering a Ph.D. program. The M.F.A. is a terminal degree, culminating in the production of a publication-quality thesis manuscript of poetry, fiction, drama or creative non-fiction.

1. Complete the general university requirements.
2. Complete the B.A. degree requirements.
3. Complete the following:*
   a. ENGL F310--Literary Criticism--3 credits

   b. Complete one of the following:
   ENGL F301--Continental Literature in Translation: The Ancient World--3 credits
   ENGL F302--Continental Literature in Translation: Medieval and

Renaissance -- 3 credits

American literature as well as general knowledge of major works of continental literature. Students will be able to identify major critical methods and employ standard research methods." The procedure consists of students submitting a major research paper from a 400-level English course of their choice to the English department.

Moreover, we strongly believe that the quality of UAF education, both departmentally and institutionally, will increase with the implementation of this program as English majors, English minors and all students interested in literary study will have the opportunity to take courses in line with current disciplinary standards.
