6. GUEST(S)

A. Brian Rogers, UAF Chancellor

Chancellor Rogers' report on UAF stated there was good news and some challenges during 2010. Student credit hours were up more than our high target, in research volume we were above our high target, in student retention of full time, first time freshman students we were up and in external funds generated we were up. We met or exceeded every major goal which the legislature and the Board of Regents measure us.

We had two major downsides last year. First, the 5.5 million dollar budget pull back to right the ship and get us where we have no unfunded obligations were cart-2( w)5(eTw 16[)]TJ 0 Tw 2.359 0 Td (f

If the governor is successful in his proposal for the $1 million deferred maintenance, meeting Martin Klein said the IARC lot will be paved and that Sheenjek lot would be closed and that there is a strong push for people to park in the Museum lot.

One other thing that will happen between now and next winter will be an agreement between the borough and the UAF Student Sustainability group to share cars, giving us another option for folks traveling to UAF.

There are two projects we have pushed with Fairbanks Metropolitan Area. We are putting up money for the design of a roundabout
